Grand Jury Presentments of July Term Superior Court

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENTS
BULLOCH SUPERIOR COURT
We, the Grand Jury, chosen and sworn to serve at the July Term of Bulloch Superior Court, 1959, beg to submit the following recommendations and presentments:

1. We wish first to thank Judge J. L. Renfro for his able and instructive charge keynoted by the stressing of the need for additional industry in Bulloch County, to hold an increase in population and financial stability of Bulloch County. Various suggestions were made by Judge Renfro regarding ways to attract said industries.

2. We, the Grand Jury, have appointed a five-man committee to study with Rep. Francis Allen and Wiley Fordham a bill which they propose to introduce to the Legislature in line with attracting industry to Bulloch County. This committee is to report back to the Grand Jury at the October Term of Bulloch Superior Court, with a report on their findings.

3. We, the Grand Jury, heard the report of a committee, appointed by the Grand Jury, to study the tobacco auction season in Georgia. So that noise you heard wasn't a Chinese laundryman's conversation. Anyway, tobacco's great thing. For your edification, tobacco is a plant. It is also a plague.

4. We, the Grand Jury, further recommend that the county spend and additional amount of approximately $750 to complete the microfilming of all county records to date. The above recommendation only carried filming records through 1912.

5. We hereby appoint J. H. Wyatt to a five year term as a member of the Board of Education for Bulloch County, to succeed himself, said term beginning on September 5th, 1959 and ending on September 5th, 1964.

6. We, the Grand Jury, recommend that the office of the County Commissioners immediately take the proper action necessary to remove all litter, debris, stored papers, etc., now stored in the steeple of the court house which does, in our opinion, create a fire hazard to said property.

7. We recommend that these presentments be published in the county paper at the usual cost.

8. We recommend that Mrs. Minnie Lee Johnson be paid the usual fee for her services in assisting us in our presentments.

9. We wish to thank the Honorable Walton Usher, the Solicitor General, for his able assistance in presenting matters for our consideration.

Respectfully submitted,
Walter H. Aldred, Foreman
B. Floyd Brannen, Clerk

Everybody Profits but the Farmer

Well sir, the tobacco auction season has opened in Georgia. So that noise you heard wasn't a Chinese laundryman's conversation. Anyway, tobacco's great thing. For your edification, tobacco is a plant. It is also a plague.

To begin with, farmers plant tobacco seed in beds so the blue mold can find it easier.

Blue mold is to tobacco what bollweevils are to cotton and your mother-in-law is to you.

After the blue mold has ruined your bed, you send off and pay too much for plants from somebody else.

Then you and the mule and the AAA set out the plants.

It used to be bad enough when it was just you and the mule. But now the government has to count rows. All farmers agree this country would be better off with more vision and less supervision.

After it comes up it either rains too much or it doesn't rain enough. Rain, like a woman's petticoat, isn't ever right.

And there's always hail.

And bugs...

In fact, between the bugs and the buyers, the farmer doesn't stand much chance nowadays.

The buyers, they're those Jesse James' without horse who gallop up and down the aisle eating boiled peanuts while the auctioneer sings snatches of "Flat Foot Floogie."

Without, of course, the "floy-floy."

It doesn't make any difference who gets the tobacco at the warehouse. The buyers will shoot craps for it that night anyway.

The farmer get his check (provided the loan man isn't waiting for him at the cashier's window) and does it out to the wife and kids.

The old lady buys herself a dress she doesn't like and the youngsters buy ice cream and hot dogs and get the stomach ache.

If there's anything left over, the farmer may buy himself a pack of readymade cigarettes.

Cigarettes are made from tobacco and tissue paper and radio.

A pound of tobacco will make enough cigarettes to supply three college girls for a week.

Yet cigarettes sell for about a penny apiece whether tobacco's a dime or a dollar a pound.

Yes sir, tobacco's a great thing. Everybody makes money out of it but the farmer. But after all, what does he expect?

He only grow it.

(Editor's Note — We found this in one of old tobacco issues. It may be out of date, but we think it's still pretty good.)

Negro 4-H Club members at 4-H Club Center

Two 4-H Club members are representing Bulloch County at the Annual State Negro 4-H Club Council which is being held this week (August 3-7) at the State 4-H Club Center at Dublin, Ga.

This council meeting is the more advanced of "top" meetings in the state for 4-H Club work. It is composed of county and district presidents, and is designed to give advanced training in leadership, citizenship, program planning, and organizational procedures. Other activities of this meeting, on the state level, are contests in Public Speaking, Talent, and the annual election of state officers.

The two representatives from this county are Elaine Garrison and Wm. "Billy" Cole.

Elaine Garrison is district vice president, and will not only represent the 1,545 Four H's of Bulloch county, but will represent the 4-H's seventeen other counties in southeast Georgia.

Wm. Cole is district winner in Talent, and will represent the district in the contest. He has two talent numbers, one is a classical dance number, and the other is a Ventriquoist number, depicting Edgar Bergen and Charley McCarthy. Billy picked this up on his own, and is now practically an accomplished ventriquoist. It is hoped by all of the 4-H's here that Elaine and Billy will hold up the standard for Bulloch County and the Southeast District.

Just facts, no comment

According to the State Department of Public Safety, Accident Reporting Division, eighty people died in Georgia during July in traffic accidents.

Since January 1, 1959, 543 people died in Georgia in traffic accidents.

One of those killed in traffic was a baby only one month old.

Causes of these July deaths? Well, thirty-two died in accidents resulting from speeding and not having their motor vehicle under control.

Eleven pedestrians were killed in traffic accidents.

Fourteen of these eighty deaths were head on collisions on the wrong side of the highway.

Thirteen of these deaths were in accidents in which there was a failure to grant the right of way.

Three resulted in collisions with trains.

Three died in accidents caused by collisions from the rear.

Two were caused by driving under the influence of liquor.

The other two died in accidents involving motor scooters or bicycles.

Fifty-seven of the deaths were male and twenty-three were female. Ten were over sixty years of age and twenty-seven were under twenty years of age.

No comment!

Worship together

Man must worship in several ways: alone with his God, in the warmth of the family circle, or in the common meeting place where distinctions disappear and are in humility and veneration.

A noted clergyman once told of a parishioner who explained his irregular attendance at worship by saying he could feel as close to God, could worship Him just as well, on a windswept, sun-drenched hill.

The clergyman gently replied: "Of course you can, but DO you?" Many do have their windsworn hills. But the light that drenches our houses of public worship has its own special added blessing for us when we join our family and our fellow man in the church of our choice acknowledging together a Power far greater than ourselves.

Up it goes!

For all the members of the Bulloch County 4-H Club who won places in the 4-H Club Project Achievement contests held at Rock Eagle last week, we toss up our hat.

And especially for the first place winners including Bonnie Dekle who won first place in senior clothing, Mary Alice Belcher who won first place in cotton and it's uses, Jane Lanier who won first place in public speaking, and Judy NeSmith who won first place in yeast bread making.

These young people learn by doing and what they are doing is worth while.

And for them we toss our editorial hat high into the air and say "congratulations."

What do you think?

Our little squib about short shorts in our Uneasy Chair recently evoked several comments—

all expressing concern about the wearing of short shorts in public. We clipped from the Augusta Chronicle on Monday morning of this week the following:

It could just as well have happened in Augusta, but the locale turned out to be Charleston. There, an observer reports counting eight girls and women on one block of a downtown street, and only one was wearing a dress. The remaining seven were clothed—but wore no skirts.

"As reported by the eagle-eyed on-looker: Two pipstems blondes wore short-skirts; a pair of fat ladies had on shorts that looked like balloons; a colored nursemaid pushing a white child in a go-cart wore tattered pants; a neat matron was clad in walking shorts, and one lady waiting for a bus wore full length slacks. The lone exception was an elderly and no doubt reactionary female in a starched summer frock."

"Now that may not always hold on Broad St., but the fact remains that women nowadays seem to be wearing less on the streets than their grandmothers wore."

"The Charleston News & Courier wonders mildly what its readers think about it."

The Chronicle has that same idle curiosity.

Anyone for comments?"

A good report

A recent report by William Smith of Bulloch County, chairman of the State Extension Service Advisory Committee, reflects a side of the Georgia agricultural picture that more often than not is obscured.

It is the side that shows achievements and optimism.

Smith pointed out that last year Georgia farmers realized an increased income of 47 million dollars from corn, cotton, peanuts and tobacco.

The feat, accomplished with smaller acreages than usual, represents a welcome beginning toward implementing the Extension Service goal of a 400-million-dollar gain for Georgia agriculture by 1965. Smith believes the goal will be reached before the target date.

To do so there must be increased efficiency in production and marketing, farm management, higher quality products, better control of insects and diseases, intensified soil sampling so as to determine what crops particular tracts are best suited to grow, etc.

The side of the agricultural picture more often spotlighted is that in which is reflected the squeeze on small operators, the migration of farm workers to urban areas because of farm mechanization, an unrealistic national farm policy and other factors.

Agriculture is in a stage of transition and for many it is a painful one.

But with Georgia's population expected to increase 30 per cent in the next 20 years, there will be a larger market for food and fiber.

That points to better days ahead for farm operators who are able to survive the transition. But only the efficient will be able to do so.

PROGRESS MOTHERED

There it lay, nestled in a valley between the Smokey Mountains just north of Cherokee, North Carolina. To the eye of a hurried tourist it held little attraction.

But to one who wanted to see all there was to see, it symbolized far more than a mere forest ranger station. And it was free, too. We decided to stop on the way back from Newfound Gap.

After a drink of cold, sparkling mountain water, (two and three drinks for the children) we moved into the museum depicting the life of the mountain people of this area—a kind of life fast losing its distinction with the swift movement of progress.

There were the implements used to cultivate the land, implements for housekeeping, implements used as weapons. You could stay and look for a week and still find this kind of museum interesting.

Outside, spread across several acres of green grass with a split rail fence, there were buildings over one-hundred years old, moved out of the mountains and restored for all to see. There was the meat house, (smoke house), the spring house, the blacksmith shop, and the farm house. Every farm was almost a community within itself. Distances were so great between farms that it became necessary that each family have everything for survival.

Here was the old adage in reality. "Necessity is the mother of invention." One of the slogans hanging in the museum read: "They did with what they had; and what they had, not they, did without."

Herman Talmadge Reports From Washington

ONE OF THE most alarming aspects of the unrelenting agitation for force legislation in the field of civil rights is the arrogant contempt which its protagonists display for the clear provisions of the Constitution of the United States.

There is a case in point in these amendments which have been offered to pending civil rights bills to resurrect the old proposals to outlaw the poll tax and to provide for federal policing of the registration of voters and the selection of presidential electors. All are areas which are left within the authority of the individual states by specific provisions of the Constitution and which have been consistently and repeatedly held within state jurisdiction by the federal courts, including a Supreme Court ruling as late as last June upholding the right of the State of North Carolina to require a literacy test as a qualification for voting.

HISTORY RECORDS that these questions were the subject of considerable debate at the Constitutional Convention of 1787 and divergent views on them were compromised by providing in Paragraph 1, Section 2, Article 1 that voters should "have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature" and in Paragraph 1, Section 4, Article 1 that Congress may "make or alter" regulations respecting the qualifications for Senators and Representatives. The naming of presidential electors was left exclusively to the states in Paragraph 2, Section 1, Article II.

Alexander Hamilton, in one of his Federalist Letters explaining the new Constitution, pointed out that the compromise provisions on elections and voter qualifications gave the Federal Government power to assure its integrity by fixing the times, places and manner of holding elections while, at the same time, reserving to the states sufficient authority to preserve their sovereignty by prescribing the qualifications of the voters.

The Senate's most eminent scholar on the subject, Senator A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, summarizes the situation thusly: "The right to elect comes from the State. Once the right is granted, the Federal Government becomes its protector."

THOSE WHO would have Congress beat this dead horse again base their contention on two strained interpretations of the Constitution: (1) that the phrase "manner of holding elections" extends to the conditions under which voters are registered and (2) that the guarantee to each state of "a republican form of government" carries with it the implied power to legislate

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

THIS WEEK comes our annual communication from our friend, Ed Martin, who lives in Charleston, S. C. We like to receive Ed's letters because he always says nice things about The Bulloch Herald. He is a resident of Bulloch County. Ed writes:

Dear Editor, "Hope all is well with you. My subscription expires in August, so I'm enclosing payment for another year's subscription."

"I'm pleased to note you have added to the Herald's collection of newspaper awards won, since I wrote you last."

"When I read Robbins' Packing Company's full page ad, Pattern For Progress, it was easy to understand why they have conducted a successful business. The inclusion of so many other events over the past ten years made it an interesting record to keep."

"I like the variety in The Editor's Uneasy Chair. You mix humor, sage civic advice, interesting customs and ideas from far away places, such as the medical value of coffee. You reverse. We are accustomed to think that, because of progress, a son has it easier than his father, away from the fertile earth still. Not so in this mountain culture.

Graphically shown through maps and pictures, the principle of progress is shown in reverse. In that area, a father would settle in a valley near a stream or a river. He was prospering, he would buy his steel traps at the trading center. His son would state his claim up the valley from his father. Being less prosperous, he would fashion his traps in his blacksmith shop. The grandson would then settle beyond his father, away from the fertile valley and water supply, and he was forced to make his traps out of wood. Thrown back, again and again, on his own resourcefulness, the mountain man found his progress mothered by necessity.

As we left the pioneer farm, the thought kept returning to me. Do modern Americans have that same sort of resourcefulness? Have the conveniences and luxuries of our present day softened us so much that we cannot cope with the unknown future? What should happen to us if, in an A-bomb attack, the spring house, the blacksmith shop, and the farm house, every farm was almost a community within itself. Distances were so great between farms that it became necessary that each family have everything for survival.

Here was the old adage in reality. "Necessity is the mother of invention." One of the slogans hanging in the museum read: "They did with what they had; and what they had, not they, did without."

POSTMASTER: Reppard DeLoach allows his post office to be used to save money. They are waiting for their present 48-star U. S. flag to wear out before they put up the new 50-star flag which will include Alaska and Hawaii in addition to the other 48 states on the present flag. It won't be long now, for we noticed Monday afternoon that our present 48-star is beginning to fray.

Earlier this year, Mr. Anderson, a welder in the Machine Shop, was handling a 2 inch bar of steel, 12 feet in length. One end of the bar was on a support which fell, jerking the heavy steel from Anderson's hand. The bar fell on his toes with sufficient force to dent a steel safety plate in the shoe. A small scratch was received, but Anderson returned to work without any lost time. Had he not been wearing these shoes, it is very likely that he would have been unable to work for some time.

Jack Anderson gets Golden Shoe Award for safe practice

Jack Anderson, 432 South Main Street, Statesboro, Georgia, was presented a Golden Shoe Award recently by John Van Horn, Rockwell Factory Superintendent. The award, which consisted of a scroll, a golden emblem in the form of a shoe, and an everyday pin, was in recognition of Anderson's foresight in preventing possible serious foot injury.

In a letter to Mr. Anderson welcoming him into the Golden Shoe Club Ed Long, Executive Secretary of the club, stated:

"It is a real pleasure to commend you on your foresight in avoiding what could have been a serious accident. Your thoughtfulness in wearing safety shoes reflects very good judgement in behalf of your personal welfare, and that of your family. Because of this, we are pleased to award you lifetime membership in the Golden Shoe Club which is dedicated to foot safety, and we extend a hearty welcome to you, a new member of this organization."

Congressman Preston takes lead in passing major cotton bill in House

WASHINGTON—THE Southern cotton bloc won a major Congressional victory with passage by the House of a bill that would slow down a shift of cotton acreages from Southern to Far Western States.

Congressman Prince H. Preston of Statesboro was appointed by a caucus of Southern members of the House on a committee of three Representatives to direct strategy and steer the bill through the House.

Following his successful efforts, Mr. Preston termed the legislation "The major farm bill of this session of Congress and one very vital to the Southern cotton farmer and to the economy of the South generally."

He said that for the past few years under the existing law "cotton acreages have been rapidly shifting from Southern States to Western States, mainly California, New Mexico and Arizona."

Mr. Preston, whose First District includes some of the South's finest cotton lands, said "this is the first time that Southern Members of Congress have been able to push through a bill that would stop this inequitable shift of acreage allotments away from traditional cotton producing states of the South."

Under a provision of a 1938 Act, which had been in operation until passage of the Soil Bank Plan, a cotton farmer was required to plant 90 per cent of his allotted acreage at least one year in three in order to retain his allotment. The Soil Bank Plan, in operation through this year, froze all cotton acreage allotments, and the old 90 per cent planting requirement would have gone back into effect next year.

It was under the old plan that Southern cotton states lost so much of their total allotment which were picked up by Far Western States. For example, Georgia cotton farmers planted 1,981,000 acres in 1940 while California's cotton acreage totaled only 356,000. By this year California's allotted acreage had jumped to 733,618 while Georgia's total cotton acreage had dropped to 850,000.

This situation resulted from the fact that under the old law a farmer would lose his assigned acreage if he did not plant it. Under the new bill a farmer will be able to return home.

GTC To Graduate 90 On Aug. 19

Record Number Expected For Fall Quarter

Another record enrollment is expected at Georgia Teachers College this fall, but new applications are still being accepted, according to Dr. Ralph K. Tyson, dean of students.

Average quarterly enrollment at GTC last year was 1,005, the first time in the 31-year history that average enrollment passed the 1,000 mark.

More than 200 vacancies still exist in men's dormitories. Although women's housing is nearing the critical stage, reservations are still being taken for new students under state law, is August 29.

The freshmen orientation program begins at 8:30 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 14. Seniors register on Thursday, Sept. 17 at 2 p.m., and sophomores and juniors register on Friday, Sept. 18 at 9:30 a.m. Classes begin on Monday, Sept. 21 at 8 a.m.

The summer commencement speaker will be Dr. Carey Vinzant, president of Tift College in Forsyth, Georgia.

A total of 90 students have been nominated for degrees at the August commencement, to be held in McCran Auditorium on Wednesday, August 19 at 10:30 a.m. The exact number depends on satisfactory completion of coursework during this session.

Dr. Vinzant was born in Burns, Mississippi, and graduated from Burns high school. He received a bachelor of arts degree from Mississippi College, a master of theology degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, and a doctor of divinity degree from Mercer University.

Dr. Vinzant has served as president of the Georgia Baptist Convention for five years; as president of the Georgia Baptist School Convention, 1946-1947; as the Georgia member of the Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

He became president of Tift (formerly Tift College) in 1952. He is married to the former Marion McGinty, and the Vinzants have two children: Allen Jr., Tifton; Donald Dunwoody Anderson, Greenville; Elwanda Barber, Manor; Carol Ann Blanton, Waycross; Lucretia Lowe Brown, Guyton; June Kennedy Brown, Statesboro; Mary Anne Davis Bryson, Waycross; Bobbie L. ### SOIL CONSERVATION

BY E. T. "RED" MULLIS
Soil Conservation Service
I have always been somewhat hesitant about trying to tell Cooperators of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District exactly how to accomplish the details of a job. The reason for this is that our farmers, as a group, are the most ingenious people in the world. If you will give them the overall picture or principle, they will come up with unusually successful details or ways of getting the job done. My theory was proved again recently when we visited Henry Blitch in the westside community. He had the same problem this year that everyone who had much planted soybeans following combined grain—weeds. This problem is due to lower grain and straw yields last spring and the rainy season. But the thing that has almost stumped some is a challenge to Mr. Blitch. He tried the recommended ways of plowing the beans with little success and much head scratching.

Mr. Blitch did plow the beans the first time the recommended way—borrowing off with disks and sowing with sweeps. But the second time with disks set to pull in and sweeps following made a mess, because as Jimmy Blitch said, the straw had not rotted sufficiently. Then Mr. Blitch came up with the idea—and this is the secret—of putting three disks, all set to pull in, one right behind the other on both sides of the row. He arranged these disks on his regular front-mounted cultivator, but these three disks, each cutting its bite off the middle, really cut the straw up and put the dirt to the beans. A sweep did burst the small middle left by the disks.

The last cultivation after this second one was a cinch. The straw was pulverized so that sweeps setting flat leveled the ground perfectly. And the most important thing—the beans were clean as a whistle and growing nicely. In fact they looked much better than beans in a nearby field where the straw had been burned and the ground broke before planting.

County Agent makes suggestions for top notch sheep program

Time for breeding sheep is here. And a sure way to cut down your profits is to not have all your ewes drop lambs. You can do an excellent job of taking care of your lambs, but if not enough are born you can't realize maximum profits.

For a topnotch sheep breeding program follow these suggestions:

1. Have plenty of high quality, vigorous rams—1 ram to 25 good rams are still available in the state.
2. Make sure ewes are in good condition.
3. Wean all lambs that are three months old.
4. Shear rams the second time, if at all possible. Shearing the second time helps prevent sterility and mortality.
5. Rotate flock from pasture to pasture every two weeks and do not go back on the first pasture for more than 30 days.
6. Keep a mixture of 1 part powdered phenothiazine and 9 parts loose salt available for sheep at all times in weather-proof box, located near the source of water. This will not rid your sheep of parasites but will aid in keeping the number of parasites down.
7. Watch closely for symptoms of foot rot and wool maggots. If symptoms appear start treatment immediately.
8. Some sheepmen are getting good results by breeding only at night or by rotating rams every night.

NEW OAT VARIETIES

Plant breeders have an endless task in developing new varieties and hybrids that will out perform those now in existence. Since new races and strains of disease develop, a variety that is disease resistant today may be susceptible tomorrow, and when they become susceptible the plant breeder must have a new one to take its place.

Varieties Radar-1 and Radar-2 were developed jointly by the Coastal Plain Experiment Station, Tifton, Georgia, and the Crops Research Division, U. S. D. A. They are dual purpose pasture and grain varieties. Yields of forage and grain are good. Heading occur a week to ten days earlier than in Victorgrain 48-93. They are resistant to most known diseases and are recommended for the Coastal Plain section of Georgia.

Moregrain was developed by Coker's Pedigreed Seed Company, Hartsville, South Carolina. Moregrain is a dual purpose oat with multiple disease resistance. The plant is semi-winter type, has leafy, vigorous, early growth, moderately stiff straw, and is well suited for combining. It matures 5-6 days earlier than Victorgrain. This variety is adapted to the Piedmont and Coastal Plain Areas.

Certified seed of all these varieties are being produced under the supervision of the Georgia Crop Improvement Association, Athens, Georgia. Growers interested in obtaining seed of these varieties should contact their local seed dealer.

120 Days Around the World on The Flying Hawk...

BY GUY H. WELLS, STATESBORO, GEORGIA

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of accounts written by Guy Wells of Statesboro about the trip he and Mrs. Wells made around the world aboard the freighter "The Flying Hawk." They left the U. S. on February 26, 1959 and returned July 7, 1959.

Bombay, India, April 20, 1959

Dar Loodel:

I am going to write you a few things about social customs in India, and send you some clippings from THE TIMES of India, India's greatest daily paper. I would like to send you a whole copy of Sunday's paper, but though it is only a few sheets, it would cost too much to air-mail it to you.

We saw two marriage processions in India. They did not put a body in a box or coffin, as we do here. It is so scarce and expensive. They had the bride wrapped in a cloth and six men carried the bride with six other men carrying a large rug like cover over the body and over the six men carrying the body. The family followed on foot behind the corpse. This was evidently a Moslem funeral. They intended interment in the ground, we were told. The Parsi do not bury or cremate the body, but leave the corpse on a pedestal or elevation called the "Tower of Silence" for the vultures to clean of flesh, and then decompose the bones with chemicals. They hold that there are five sacred elements: sun, air, earth, water and fire. These elements must not be contaminated with death. This is an old religion from Persia. Moslems bury their dead; Hindus cremate.

We saw a young man with his family and friends going to marry his girl. He was riding a small horse, and all the others were walking. A small music...

Student Loan Program Explained

Georgia Teachers College is one of many institutions of higher learning participating in the National Defense Student Loan Program, one of the provisions of the National Defense Education Act enacted into law in 1958 by the 85th Congress of the United States.

1. Student loans available at Georgia Teachers College under this act are for persons regularly enrolled or admitted as full-time students. Beginning freshmen or transfer students may apply as soon as they have been properly admitted by the Registrar for full-time study.

2. The deadline for an application for any given quarter is thirty (30) days prior to the date of registration for that quarter. Applications may be filed on a quarterly or yearly basis. Application for full quarter must be made by Aug. 19.

3. First preference is given to students who are planning to teach in the elementary or secondary public schools. Second preference is given to students studying in the fields of science, mathematics, foreign languages, or engineering. Third preference is given to all other categories or able, needy students.

4. Loans are intended for "outstanding students" who cannot come to college without financial aid for students who cannot stay enrolled at the college without some financial assistance.

5. The college, acting through a President's Committee, must analyze carefully the financial need of the applicant and grant more in loans than is actually needed. Thus, valid statement of the financial resources of the student and parent or guardian is required.

6. Proper endorsements are required under Georgia law for applicants under 21 years of age.

7. Interest on the loan is 3%, beginning one year after the student graduates or leaves school.

8. Repayment of the loan begins one year following termination of full-time study.

9. For students who enter public elementary or secondary school teaching, half of all they have borrowed is forgiven or, to put it another way, is converted retroactively into a scholarship. This conversion takes place at the rate of 10% of the total loan per year of teaching, for a maximum period of five years.

10. Application forms may be secured on request to the address given above.

Tracy Rivers Signs at GTC; Two Sport Star
Georgia Teachers College athletic coaches have recruited an outstanding player in each of our two major sports—but oddly enough only one scholarship is an outstanding player in each of our two major sports.

Tracy Rivers, of Omega high school and Brewton Parker Junior College, has signed a grant-in-aid at GTC, and he is believed to be the first Georgia athlete to be recruited by the college.

Junior College athlete to capture enough only one scholarship is an outstanding player in each of our two major sports.

Rivers is a basketball forward and a baseball pitcher.

A right-hander, the 6-4, 200-pound Rivers posted a 7-0 record in the mound, striking out 99, and giving up only six earned runs in 63 innings.

Soil stamps to go on sale Aug. 26

Cooperators of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District are among those honored by issuance of the world's first soil conservation stamp, Paul NeSmith said today.

Mr. NeSmith said the stamp, to be issued August 26 at Rapid City, S. D., is a tribute to the nations conservation farmers including the cooperators of the local district, which has been operating since 1940.

"The 4-cent stamp is in recognition of the farmers who are demonstrating good soil stewardship," Mr. NeSmith said. "It is a salute to their soil conservation districts, and to the professional workers of State and Federal government who help them."

The stamp will go on sale August 26 at Rapid City, S. C., at the annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America, a professional organization, Mr. NeSmith said.

On the following day, the stamp will go on sale at other post offices throughout the country, including those at Statesboro, Brooklet, Stilton, Port, Register and Collegeboro.
